Images of Art and Technology

This program features pioneers in image processing including, Steina screening "Lilith" which uses focal plane shifts and frame grabbing to enthrall our gaze and "Vocalizations One" utilizing an interactive device that allows the voice to pass secondary video images into a primary one; Woody Vasulka presents "The Art of Memory" in a highly complex meditation on the violent events that have ushered in the atomic age. Historical images are set against the barren and monumental Southwestern landscape for this electronic opera; and Stephen Beck presents "Animus" an early experimental video utilizing image processing technologies. Louise Ledeem will moderate a discussion with the artists about their works following the screening.
